Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center's Builds Innovation Inside and Outside

(Lee's Summit, Missouri – October 10, 2007) – The Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center has provided the most comprehensive and advanced skin care in the Kansas City metropolitan area since 1987. Now Healthcare Design Magazine, in conjunction with The Center of Health Design, has selected the Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center in Lee's Summit for publication in their 2007 Architectural Showcase for exemplifying excellence in the field of healthcare design.

The Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center, designed by ACI/Boland, Inc. of Leawood, was recognized for its concept of a “building used as a billboard” as its central theme on the outside of the building while conveying a less clinical, yet cutting-edge feeling on the inside.

Healthcare Design pointed out the building's front entrance canopy, its curving walls, unique interiors featuring natural materials and other warm accents as reasons why the Lee's Summit location was selected in its category.

“We've always known that a building is an integral part of our business' success and we're pleased that this philosophy is being recognized,” said Dr. Glenn Goldstein, the center's founder. “We're grateful to Healthcare Design for this recognition and to ACI/Boland for their work.”

dermatologists including Dr. Glenn Goldstein, Dr. Shawn Sabin, Dr. Mark Fleischman, Dr. James San Filippo, Dr. Karen Neubauer, Dr. Jamie McGinness, Dr. Celeste Angel and Dr. Stephen J. Plumb, a specialist in dermatopathology.

Together they treat patients from infants to mature adults providing a life-time of care and have one of the few certified fellowship/training programs in the country for Mohs Micrographic Surgery, an effective technique for treating high-risk skin cancers. The Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center leads the way in innovation through its DermAccess program that allows patients with suspicious lesions to be seen within 72 hours.

The practice also includes a Skin Care Center with cosmetic aestheticians under the supervision of board certified physicians. Patients now can have all their dermatology and skin care treatment services under one roof.
